

Title:

Data preservation and long term analysis

Author:

Yves Kemp, DESY

Abstract:

Acquiring large amounts of data for Science has cost a lot of effort.

Whenever sensible, efforts should be made to preserve these data, and to be able to analyze it with new methods.

This contribution will present techniques and methods necessary to both preservation of data and a long term analysis. Examples and implications will be shown from a High Energy Physics study group.